State & Local News

◆ FIRE DESTROYS CAR AT GAS STATION

The car pictured below was destroyed by fire Wednesday night at the Marathon gas station on Highway 39 East. The 2005 Toyota Matrix was fully involved in flames as firefighters arrived. The Englewood and Athens Rural Fire Departments responded. (Photo by Lynn Ingram with the Englewood Rural Fire Department)

◆ PRISON BECOMES TOURIST ATTRACTION

After decades of housing dangerous criminals, a former East Tennessee prison will officially open this weekend as a tourist attraction. The historic Brushy Mountain maximum-security prison will feature a museum, distillery, and restaurant. There will be tours with former prison guards on hand to answer questions and share stories. The penitentiary held notorious criminals such as James Earl Ray, the convicted assassin of Martin Luther King, Jr., and Byron Looper, killer of Tennessee State Senator Tommy Burks.

National & World News

◆ Police in California arrested a 32-year-old man on Wednesday who is accused of setting multiple wildfires in Riverside County that have scorched thousands of acres and forced mass evacuations. He's been charged with five counts of arson to wildland.

◆ Investigators in Iowa have zeroed in on missing jogger Mollie Tibbetts' digital footprint, including her Fitbit, which can capture GPS data. Tibbetts, a 20-year-old sophomore at the University of Iowa mysteriously disappeared while jogging the evening of July 18 in her rural town of Brooklyn, Iowa.

◆ The House of Representatives wrapped up legislative business on Thursday without considering articles of impeachment against Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein. This gives the Department of Justice five more weeks to comply with a congressional subpoena.

◆ President Trump assured farmers in Iowa Thursday, who are feeling the fallout from his trade war, that he has achieved major gains in bringing countries to the negotiating table with threats of tariffs and doubled down on some of his tough rhetoric targeting China.

◆ Ohio Republican Rep. Jim Jordan, announced his intent to run for House Speaker if Republicans protect their majority in this fall's midterm election.
